

The logo for MUSTE Talks features the word 'muste' in a stylized, brown, gothic-style font, with 'Talks' in a simpler, brown, sans-serif font below it. The text is set against a light orange background that resembles a speech bubble.

MuStE organises a series of online talks which will be available as recordings for all those who are interested. The opening and closing talks will have a live version.

12 March (live, 13.00 h)

Prof Francisco Cortés (Universidad de La Laguna): Why should I study the Lexicon? Answers from around us.

15—21 March

Dr Luis Puente-Castelo (Universidade da Coruña/University of Birmingham): Corpus Linguistics: What is it and what can I use it for?

22 March — 4 April

Dr Leida Maria Monaco (Universidad de Oviedo): Corpus compilation: How do I build my own corpus?

5—11 April

Prof Pascual Cantos (Universidad de Murcia): Do I really need mathematics in linguistic studies?

19—25 April

Dr María-José Esteve Ramos (Universitat Jaume I/University of Glasgow): Historical Linguistics: why should I study the history of English?

26 April — 2 May

Dr Margarita Mele Marrero (Universidad de La Laguna): "On the margins of the standardization of English"

3—9 May

Prof Isabel de la Cruz Cabanillas (Universidad de Alcalá): "Changes in words and changes in meaning"

21 May (live, 12.00 h)

Prof Jeremy Smith (University of Glasgow): An Intro to medieval texts and manuscripts

ORGANISED BY:

The logo for MUSTE, featuring the word 'muste' in a stylized, brown, gothic-style font.

RESEARCH GROUP FOR MULTIDIMENSIONAL CORPUS-BASED STUDIES IN ENGLISH

Facultade de Filoloxía

UNIVERSIDADE DA CORUÑA

